

The Drought Devils collection features plants well adapted to California gardens and are classified as needing low to moderate amounts of supplemental summer water. This group primarily includes natives from California, the Mediterranean, and Australia - that thrive in the Bay Area's summer-dry climate.

Drought Devils are drought-tolerant once established assuming proper soil structure and standard seasonal precipitation. These plants will need regular water for about two dry seasons in order to develop strong stems and extensive root systems. By the third dry season, these plants should be able to thrive with low amounts of supplemental water, expect for times of extreme hot weather or prolonged drought.

For more information please visit our website at:
www.devilmountainnursery.com/droughtdevils

Please note that due to seasonal availability not all plants listed are available at all times. To inquire about availability, please contact our sales department at (925) 829-6006 or sales@devilmountainnursery.com

*By no means is this list an entire summary of all drought-tolerant plants that do well in California gardens. This list is limited to plants that Devil Mountain stocks or can source from our vendors. (If you have had experience with a plant and think it should be included on this list, please contact us and we would be happy to hear your suggestions. Adversely, if you have had experience with a plant that you think should not be included on this list, feel free contact us as well.)

These plants are organized by type, so that choosing the right plants for the right space and function will be made easier.
